Can you spot an impostor? Eighty-five percent of adults are confident they can, according to a recent AARP survey. But the majority of the survey participants then flunked an [“Impostor IQ” quiz](http://aarplocal.poll daddy.com/s/imposter- iq) (<http://aarplocal.poll daddy.com/s/imposter- iq>) that measures the ability to spot a liar (take the quiz at [aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork \(/money/scams-fraud/fraud-watch-network/\)](http://aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork (/money/scams-fraud/fraud-watch-network/)))).

Welcome to what experts call the illusion of invulnerability — the belief that frauds happen to others but not you. Overconfidence in your ability to spot bad guys is a dangerous thing. Impostor fraud (<http://blog.aarp.org/2017/03/10/ftc-impostor-scams-surpass-id-theft-but-debt-collection-remains-top-complaint/>) is among the fastest-growing scam types precisely because so many of us think we are immune to it.

To help, here is a small sampling of actual impostor scams now playing out across America. The takeaway? Never accept a pitch or give any information to a stranger — on the phone, in person or over the internet — without first independently verifying that it’s legitimate.

The jury duty manager: “Hi, I’m calling from the courthouse, and you missed jury duty. Pay $400 or go to prison.”
